Blikstad went out fast to try and steal the race in the first 2000 m. he still held a 20y. lead at the last water jump but was obviously tired and Kebiro was slowly making up ground, he had the 5000 yd to go. Blikstad stumbled on the last water jump but that's not what lost the race - Kebiro had it all the way.

M. vasalated from 1st to 2nd but kept about the same distance between him & Shaw. It's really something to see these Kenyans (Muthama & Kebiro) run - they seem to ~~lose~~^{maintain} control all the way - seem confident that they can overcome ~~of~~ the lead & just when to jump to do it.
