Fellow Cross Country Coaches:

Enclosed are the results of yesterday's Region I meet. The reason things were so mixed up and results not ready at the end of the meet was that the meet director, Sean Gogan of Sacred Heart and the person responsible for results, Marty Precaccio of Mitty did not show up.

Thanks to the assistance of Terry Ward of Bellarmine and Greg Alverado of Jefferson we were able to throw a meet together.

Sorry for the inconvenience.

Carlmont runner battles injuries, finishes second

By GREG QUIGLEY
Times Correspondent

BELMONT — Carlmont High's Cort Armstrong is scaling the pinnacles of success on the prep cross-country circuit once again.

Hampered by nagging injuries in recent weeks, Armstrong regained the racing edge he displayed in mid-season and placed second in the Central Coast Section Region I race Tuesday at Crystal Springs.

Armstrong recovered in time to post a time of 15:08 on the winding 2.9-mile Belmont course. Bellarmine's Mark Callon took the individual title in 15:04, while the Bells convincingly captured the team championship with 19 points (15 is perfect) as five runner placed in the top seven.

The top four boys' teams — Bellarmine, Carlmont, Serra and St. Ignatius — advance to the CCS Finals next Tuesday at Crystal Springs.

Additionally, South San Francisco's Alberto Gomez, Menlo-Atherton's Andy Bullock, Hillsdale's John Tanner, Woodside's Scott Cox and Terra Nova's Dave Tigert moved onto the finals as individuals.

Meanwhile, in girls' action, Half Moon Bay clinched a third straight CCS Region I crown. Half Moon Bay, the North Peninsula League titlist, wound up with 65 points, while Menlo-Atherton, led by third-place finisher Laurie Andeen, took second at 88 and Mills placed third at 95.

Andeen, a sophomore and one of two returners from last year's third place NorCal team, was the top county finisher as she ran 18:23. That was far off her course best of 18:02. She qualified for next week's finals with the Bear squad.

The Half Moon Bay, Menlo-Atherton, Mills and Burlingame squads advanced to the finals, along with the following individuals: Kathy McCandless of Castilleja, Mary Mendoza of Presentation, Cynthia Mahaffey of Carlmont, freshman Amy Viall of Hillsdale and Patty Pender of Westmoor.

McCandless won the race in 17:53, followed by Mendoza in 18:02.

Half Moon Bay's top placers were Jenny Hampton in 12th and Amy Clemens in 16th.

Jennifer Dankwerth of Mills, the PAL team champion, finished eight in 19:57. Menlo-Atherton's second runner, Susan Horstmeier, claimed sixth in 19:47.

Carlmont's Cort Armstrong had what he thought was shin splints, but the x-rays proved negative. Still, his legs were bothering him, and he suffered from strained calves. With the ailments, Armstrong has decreased his training schedule and frequently has visited a physical therapist.

"I wasn't that worried about the race," said the senior athlete. "I went through the first mile seeing how I'd feel.

"It was in the final mile that I wanted to see how thing would come out. I decided to hold the lead, then I got a second wind.

Heading up "Cardiac Hill," a treacherous climb at the 2-mile mark, Armstrong held a two-step lead. "I thought he would pass me, but he stayed just behind be," Armstrong said, "and I haven't had much of a kick all year."

It was that lack of last-gasp sprint that kept Armstrong from the title. Callon overtook Armstrong in the final 150 yards.

Despite the loss, Armstrong had already turned his attention to the finals, and more important, the NorCals, to be held Nov. 30.

Gomez was disappointed with his second-place finish to Tigert in the NPL finals last Wednesday. "This is what I should have done last week," said Gomez, who chalked up a third-place finish in 15:21, outlasting four more Bellarmine runners.

"I wanted to stay with Armstrong. He came in as a favorite, and I knew he'd be near the lead," Gomez said. "I came into the race pretty prepared, and I ran well."

Runners

Menlo-Atherton's Bullock finished eighth in 15:40. "That's the first time he's broke the 16-minute mark," M-A Coach Plato Yanicks said. "We've been waiting and waiting for him to reach his potential, and today he ran his greatest race."

The Region II (south Peninsula and north San Jose) finals were held Tuesday at Crystal Springs, while Region III (south and west San Jose) and IV (Monterey area) meet for their championships today at the same course. At the CCS finals next week, the girls' competition gets underway at 3 p.m., followed by the boys' event at 3:30 p.m. Should there be rain next Tuesday or should the course be unrunnable, the finals would be switched to College of San Mateo.

Cross-country stars in CCS meet today

11-18-85

BELMONT — Peninsula Athletic League cross-country titlists Cort Armstrong of Carlmont and Laurie Andeen of Menlo-Atherton head the field of county athletes who will compete in today's Central Coast Section Region I championships.

The Region I meet, as will the other regionals, will be held at Crystal Springs course in Belmont, a 2.9-mile hilly terrain. The varsity boys' race begins at 3 p.m. and the varsity girls' competition starts at 3:30 p.m.

Armstrong won the PAL boys' title two weeks ago, while Andeen, a sophomore, won the girls' league crown.

Some of Armstrong's county competitors will be North Peninsula League champ Dave Tigert of Terra Nova and NPL runner-up Alberto Gomez of South San Francisco.

Bellarmine, a traditional powerhouse from the West Catholic Athletic League, will be favored to take the team title, and should place many individuals in the top 10.

Andeen should be a threat to win the girls' Region I race now that NPL champ Sabrina Han has pulled out.

Han captured the NPL title last Wednesday by 1:29, but she's been hampered by tendonitis of the knee throughout the season, and her condition has not improved. She's elected to have surgery on tomorrow, then begin a recuperation process that should enable her to return to track competition early in January.

The Region II meet is today starting at 2 p.m., the Region III meet is at 2 p.m. Wednesday, followed by the Region IV meet at 3

Bellarmino shows CCS title form

Special to the Times Tribune

Bellarmino Prep's Mark Callon overtook Carlmont's Cort Armstrong in the final 300 yards to earn the Region I cross country title Tuesday at the 3.0-mile Crystal Springs course in Belmont.

Of more importance to Callon was the way his Bellarmine teammates ran to earn the championship with 19 points. Carlmont was a distant second with 94.

Callon won in 15:06, the same time

Prep cross country

Mountain View's Craig Blockhus ran to win the Region II race before the Division I race.

"It is always exciting to beat a runner as good as Armstrong," Callon said, "but how about those other Bellarmine runners?"

"Dan Fisher is normally our fifth or sixth man and he finished fifth overall today in 15:24, and our fifth runner was seventh in 15:35. I would say that gives us a great chance to win our second consecutive CCS championship."

Even Bellarmine coach Terry Ward feels pretty good about his team's chances next Tuesday at the Central Coast Section championships at Crystal Springs.

"How can I not be pleased and excited with what happened today?" Ward said. "Fisher had not broken 16:00 on this course until our league meet last week when he did 15:59, and Kevin Vergho was running his first varsity race today and he takes 20th overall with a 16:08.

in Region I triumph

"Our team time (first five runners) was 76:58, second or third best ever on this course. I have to be ecstatic."

Although the boys' races were interesting, the most impressive performance was turned in by Gunderson's Laurie Chapman in the Region II girls' race.

Chapman, the CCS champion at 3,200 meters last spring, posted a 17:08.4 to finish nearly a minute ahead of Mountain View's Shannon Clark.

Castilleja's Katy McCandless won the Region I race in 17:53.

The first five teams qualified for the CCS finals along with the first five runners not on qualifying teams.

Of significance were team efforts by Homestead, Gunn, Mountain View and Half Moon Bay, whose boys' and girls' teams qualified for the finals.

Homestead won the Region II boys' title with 32 points. Leland, with 64 points, nosed out improving St. Francis (78) for the girls title.

Cross country

Bellarmino is the favorite for the boys' title in the CCS finals Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at Crystal Springs. Leland, St. Francis and Half Moon Bay are among the favorites in the girls' race, which begins at 3 p.m.

Individual contenders include Bellarmine's Mark Callon, Carlmont's Cort Armstrong and Mountain View's Craig Blockhus in the boys' race, and Gunderson's Laurie Chapman, Mountain View's Shannon Clark and Castilleja's Katy McCandless.
